Lawless Spaces: Warrant-Proof Encryption and Its Impact On Child Exploitation Cases

October 4, 2019 from 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.
Great Hall, RFK Building, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C.

Encryption is an essential tool that helps protect data, communications, devices, and infrastructure from cyber threats. But the rapidly growing use of encryption in everyday devices and software means that malicious actors – including drug traffickers, terrorists, and those seeking to harm children – often shield their illicit activities from detection. This event explores the public safety impacts of “warrant-proof” encryption in the context of child exploitation investigations and prosecutions.
